

I PRAY...

we would love with patience and kindness.

we would not envy, boast or assert ourselves with pride.

we would not dishonor each other, become self-seeking or easily angered.

we would keep no record of wrongs and that we would rejoice with the truth.

we would always protect, always trust, always hope, and always persevere.

we will honor our marriage and each other through faithfulness and purity.

we will always see each other as beautiful and pleasing and that we would find delight in each other.

my husband will love me as he loves himself and that I will respect him.

we would live our lives for Christ, strengthened in faith, and overflowing with thankfulness.

we would consider it pure joy whenever we face trials, knowing the testing of our faith produces perseverance.
